

If a product is faulty, do I have to deal directly with the manufacturer to get redress?

No, you do not. The Consumer Protection Act states that the retailer is also liable for faulty goods. You do not have to deal with the manufacturer – the onus is on the retailer to do so if they wish.