

What is predatory pricing?

Predatory pricing occurs where a dominant firm sets its prices very low, often below its cost of production, with the intention of forcing its competitors out of the market, thereby creating a monopoly so that it can subsequently charge very high prices, earning supernormal prices.