

What happens if the FTC finds a person or enterprise is engaging in anti- competitive practices?

The person or enterprise will be directed to desist from engaging in the activity or agreement. If they persist the Commission may apply to the courts for an injunction. The Court can then impose a fine or a term of imprisonment on the offending party.